Program Overview and Philosophy

The Creighton University Family Medicine Residency Program is committed to training competent, compassionate, and culturally sensitive family physicians. Rooted in the Jesuit tradition of service and excellence, the program emphasizes holistic patient care, integrating physical, emotional, and social health dimensions. It aims to produce physicians who are not only skilled clinicians but also advocates for community health and wellness. The program is located in Omaha, Nebraska, providing residents exposure to diverse patient populations, including urban, rural, and underserved communities.

Mission and Core Values

The mission of the Creighton University Family Medicine Residency Program centers on preparing residents to deliver comprehensive care across the lifespan. Its core values include:

- Commitment to patient-centered care and ethical practice
- Promotion of lifelong learning and evidence-based medicine
- Encouragement of community engagement and service
- Fostering interdisciplinary collaboration and teamwork
- Respect for diversity and inclusion in healthcare delivery

Program Goals

The program aims to equip residents with the knowledge, skills, and attitudes necessary to excel in family medicine. This includes proficiency in outpatient and inpatient care, preventive medicine, chronic disease management, and acute care. Additionally, the program prepares graduates to assume leadership roles in healthcare systems and contribute to advancing family medicine through research and education.

Curriculum and Clinical Training

The curriculum of the Creighton University Family Medicine Residency Program is comprehensive and designed to provide progressive responsibility and diverse clinical exposure. Emphasis is placed on a balanced education encompassing inpatient, outpatient, emergency, and specialty care.

Core Clinical Rotations

Residents participate in a variety of clinical rotations that develop their competence in multiple domains of family medicine. Key rotations include:

- Primary care clinics focusing on preventive and chronic disease management
- Hospital medicine with inpatient care responsibilities
- Pediatrics and adolescent medicine

- Obstetrics and gynecology, including prenatal care and deliveries
- Emergency medicine exposure for acute care skills
- Mental health and behavioral medicine
- Geriatrics and palliative care

Didactic Education and Simulation

In addition to clinical rotations, the residency program offers structured didactic sessions including lectures, case conferences, and journal clubs. Simulation labs provide hands-on experience in procedural skills and emergency scenarios, enhancing resident preparedness and confidence.

Community-Based Training

Residents engage in community health initiatives and rotations in underserved settings, fostering an understanding of social determinants of health and the challenges faced by vulnerable populations. This component reinforces the program's commitment to service and health equity.

Faculty and Mentorship

The Creighton University Family Medicine Residency Program boasts a dedicated faculty team comprised of experienced clinicians, educators, and researchers. Faculty members are committed to resident development, providing personalized mentorship and guidance throughout training.

Faculty Expertise

Faculty members bring diverse expertise in areas such as:

- Chronic disease management
- Women's health and obstetrics
- Behavioral health integration
- Sports medicine

- Geriatrics and palliative care
- Academic medicine and research

Mentorship and Professional Development

Residents benefit from a structured mentorship program that supports clinical skill enhancement, career planning, and scholarly pursuits. Faculty advisors assist residents in setting academic goals, navigating challenges, and preparing for board certification and future practice opportunities.

Research and Scholarly Activities

Research is an integral component of the Creighton University Family Medicine Residency Program, promoting critical thinking and evidence-based practice. Residents are encouraged to participate in scholarly projects that contribute to the field of family medicine.

Research Opportunities

The program provides resources and mentorship for residents interested in clinical research, quality improvement, and community-based studies. Collaborative projects often focus on improving patient outcomes, preventive care strategies, and healthcare delivery models.

Academic Conferences and Publications

Residents have opportunities to present research findings at regional and national conferences. The program supports efforts to publish scholarly work, fostering academic growth and enhancing professional credentials.

Resident Life and Support Services

The Creighton University Family Medicine Residency Program prioritizes resident well-being and work-life balance through comprehensive support services and a collegial environment.

Work Environment and Culture

The residency fosters a supportive culture characterized by teamwork, mutual respect, and open communication. Residents benefit from collaborative learning and peer support, enhancing both personal and professional development.

Wellness and Support Resources

Recognizing the demands of medical training, the program offers wellness initiatives including counseling services, stress management workshops, and wellness retreats. These resources are designed to maintain resident health and prevent burnout.

Housing and Community Engagement

Residents have access to affordable housing options near the training sites. The program encourages participation in community activities, volunteer opportunities, and social events that strengthen connections within the Omaha area.

Application Process and Eligibility

The Creighton University Family Medicine Residency Program follows a competitive application process to select highly qualified candidates committed to family medicine.

Application Requirements

Applicants must meet the following eligibility criteria:

- Graduation from an accredited allopathic or osteopathic medical school
- Successful completion of the United States Medical Licensing Examination (USMLE) or Comprehensive Osteopathic Medical Licensing Examination (COMLEX)
- Demonstrated commitment to family medicine and community service
- Strong letters of recommendation from clinical faculty
- Personal statement outlining career goals and interest in family medicine

Selection Process

The program employs a holistic review process including evaluation of academic achievement, clinical performance, research involvement, and interpersonal skills. Selected applicants are invited for interviews to assess fit with the program's mission and values.

Important Dates and Contact Information

Prospective applicants are advised to consult official program communications for application deadlines and interview schedules. The program participates in the National Resident Matching Program (NRMP) to facilitate the matching process.
