Test Content and Key Domains

The foundations of reading test nc covers several essential domains that collectively represent the core knowledge required for effective reading instruction. These domains are grounded in research-based literacy principles and reflect the components of reading instruction defined by the National Reading Panel.

Phonological and Phonemic Awareness

This domain assesses the candidate's understanding of spoken language sounds, including the ability to recognize and manipulate phonemes and syllables. It includes skills such as blending, segmenting, and identifying rhyme and alliteration, which are critical for developing decoding abilities in young readers.

Phonics and Word Recognition

Phonics knowledge involves understanding the relationship between letters and sounds and applying this knowledge to decode unfamiliar words. This domain evaluates knowledge of letter-sound correspondences, spelling patterns, and strategies for teaching word recognition to emergent readers.

Fluency

Fluency pertains to the ability to read text accurately, quickly, and with appropriate expression. The test examines strategies for developing fluency, such as guided oral reading and repeated reading, as well as the role fluency plays in reading comprehension and motivation.

Vocabulary Development

Understanding and teaching vocabulary is crucial for reading comprehension. This domain evaluates knowledge of vocabulary acquisition strategies, word meanings, context clues, and the use of semantic and syntactic cues to aid understanding of text.

Reading Comprehension

Reading comprehension is the ultimate goal of reading instruction. This section tests skills related to literal and inferential comprehension, summarization, identifying main ideas and themes, and the use of questioning strategies to enhance understanding.

Instructional Practices and Assessment

Beyond content knowledge, the test assesses understanding of effective instructional methods and assessment tools used to support students' reading development. This includes differentiating instruction, using formative assessments, and applying intervention strategies for struggling readers.

Question Types

foundations of reading test nc: Improving Health Literacy Within a State Institute of Medicine, Board on Population Health and Public Health Practice, Roundtable on Health Literacy, 2011-11-07 Health literacy is the degree to which individuals can obtain, process, and understand the basic health information and services they need to make appropriate health decisions. According to Health Literacy: A Prescription to End Confusion (IOM, 2004), nearly half of all American adults-90 million people-have inadequate health literacy to navigate the healthcare system. To address issues raised in that report, the Institute of Medicine convened the Roundtable on Health Literacy, which brings together leaders from the federal government, foundations, health plans, associations, and private companies to discuss challenges facing health literacy practice and research and to identify approaches to promote health literacy in both the public and private sectors. On November 30, 2010, the roundtable cosponsored a workshop with the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA), Anderson School of Management in Los Angeles. Improving Health Literacy Within a State serves as a summary of what occurred at the workshop. The workshop focused on understanding what works to improve health literacy across a state, including how various stakeholders have a role in improving health literacy. The focus of the workshop was on presentations and discussions that address (1) the clinical impacts of health literacy improvement approaches; (2) economic outcomes of health literacy implementation; and (3) how various stakeholders can affect health literacy.
