Overview of Idaho Humane Society Found Pets Program

The Idaho Humane Society found pets program is designed to manage the intake, care, and reunification of lost animals found within the region. This program serves as a crucial link between lost pets and their owners, providing a safe haven for animals until they can be returned home or placed in new loving families. The society's mission includes promoting animal welfare, preventing pet homelessness, and supporting responsible pet ownership. By operating a structured found pets program, the Idaho Humane Society ensures that animals receive proper medical attention, shelter, and nutrition while also facilitating timely reunions or adoptions.

Scope and Objectives

The primary objectives of the Idaho Humane Society found pets program include:

- Providing shelter and care for lost or stray animals.
- Using identification methods to locate pet owners.
- Offering adoption opportunities for unclaimed pets.
- Educating the public on responsible pet ownership and lost pet prevention.
- Collaborating with local agencies and communities to maximize found pet recovery rates.

Types of Found Pets Managed

The Idaho Humane Society handles a wide variety of found pets, including but not limited to dogs, cats, rabbits, and other small domestic animals. Each type of animal receives species-specific care tailored to their needs throughout their stay at the facility.

Process for Handling Found Pets

The Idaho Humane Society follows a systematic process to ensure found pets are cared for efficiently while efforts are made to identify and reunite them with their owners. This process encompasses intake, initial assessment, medical evaluation, and documentation.

Intake Procedures

When a pet is found and brought to the Idaho Humane Society, the intake team conducts a thorough assessment. This includes:

- Recording physical characteristics such as breed, size, color, and any distinguishing marks.
- Checking for identification such as microchips, collars, or tags.
- Providing necessary medical care including vaccinations, flea treatment, and health screenings.
- Assigning a temporary identification number for tracking purposes within the shelter system.

Initial Health Evaluation

Each found pet undergoes a complete health evaluation by veterinary staff. This step is critical to identify any injuries, illnesses, or conditions that require immediate attention. The Idaho Humane Society prioritizes animal welfare by ensuring all found pets receive appropriate treatment and care while in custody.

Identification and Reunification

Reuniting found pets with their rightful owners is a central goal of the Idaho Humane Society found pets program. Multiple identification strategies and community outreach efforts are implemented to facilitate this process.

Microchip Scanning and Registry Checks

One of the most effective methods for identifying found pets is scanning for implanted microchips. The Idaho Humane Society utilizes specialized scanners to detect microchips and then contacts the registered owners through national and regional databases. This technology significantly increases the chances of timely reunification.

Public Notification Systems

In addition to microchip scanning, the society employs various notification methods to alert the community about found pets. These include:

- Posting found pet photos and descriptions on the Idaho Humane Society's official website and social media platforms.
- Utilizing local media outlets and community bulletin boards.
- Collaborating with neighborhood groups and animal control agencies.

Owner Verification and Reclaiming Process

Once a potential owner is identified, the Idaho Humane Society follows a verification process to confirm ownership. The reclaiming procedure typically involves providing proof of ownership such as veterinary records or photographs. Owners are then informed of any necessary fees or procedures required to reclaim their pets.

Adoption and Care for Unclaimed Pets

Pets that remain unclaimed after the designated holding period are given the opportunity to be adopted into new homes through the Idaho Humane Society's adoption program. This ensures that found pets continue to receive care and find permanent families.

Holding Period and Legal Requirements

Idaho state regulations mandate a minimum holding period during which found pets must be kept to allow owners time to reclaim them. The Idaho Humane Society adheres to these legal requirements, balancing the need for owner reunification with the welfare of the animals.

Adoption Process

The adoption process is designed to match pets with appropriate families. It includes:

- Screening potential adopters to assess suitability.
- Providing counseling on pet care and responsibilities.
- Completing adoption agreements to ensure commitment to animal welfare.
- Offering post-adoption support and resources.

Ongoing Care and Support

Throughout their time at the Idaho Humane Society, found pets receive continual care including socialization, training support, and medical attention. This comprehensive care enhances their adoptability and overall well-being.

Community Resources and Support

The Idaho Humane Society found pets program is strengthened by active community engagement and collaboration with local organizations. Various resources are available for individuals seeking assistance with found or lost pets.

Reporting and Searching for Found Pets

Community members can report found pets through dedicated channels provided by the Idaho Humane Society. Additionally, individuals searching for lost pets are encouraged to utilize the society's database and outreach services to increase the likelihood of recovery.

Volunteer and Foster Programs

The society relies on volunteers and foster families to expand its capacity for caring for found pets. Volunteers assist with daily care, socialization, and community outreach, while foster homes provide temporary shelter for animals requiring special attention or rehabilitation.

Educational Initiatives

Public education efforts by the Idaho Humane Society promote responsible pet ownership, including microchipping, spaying/neutering, and safe containment practices. These initiatives help reduce the number of lost and stray animals in the community.

idaho humane society found pets: How Shelter Pets are Brokered for Experimentation

Allie Phillips, 2010-12-28 Back in the 1940s, the practice referred to as Pound seizure became a common practice in taxpayer-funded animal shelters across the country. Whether for cosmetic testing, human or animal drug testing, medical technique and tool testing, or biochemical testing, these once-family pets are subjected to experimentation that often ends in death. While many states fail to keep accurate data, the number of pets that become victims of pound seizure easily reaches the thousands and though most citizens are unaware of the practice, it may very well be happening at their local animal shelter. Pound seizure remains a dirty little secret in American society, but the practice is moving toward extinction with the help of local citizens advocating for change at their shelter, as well as animal rescue and welfare organizations providing assistance and advocacy. Learning more about the practice, as well as alternatives, will help give readers a fuller picture of what's happening in American animal shelters and what they can do to stem the tide of dealers and brokers sweeping off animals to their almost-certain demise.
