ihave a lovesick teacher: Love on Air Katlego Lehlabile, 2014-12-01 To never give-up on love, it comes in different ways. One of these days we all going to feel and experience that true love. That true love does happen once in a while, whereby you just cant imagine your life with that person and willing even to die for that person. Eventually it might happen that you break-up and reality comes in. then you start experiencing different feeling for that person and you might even hate him/her more that you loved him/her. As life goes on, you start experiencing the same feelings of love for a different person and start realising that God can give you another chance to love again. Most important thing is that NEVER GIVE-UP ON LOVE I started writing this book when I was 20 years old, doing my first semester at Central University of Technology, Free State. What inspired me to write this book, was the true love I had for one of the ladies at home, the difficulties i had to go through just to win her heart, experiences I have encountered both spiritually and emotionally. This is the love I will always cherish, although both of us moved on with our lives with different people. I will like to thank my family for the support they have shown during this relationship, mostly I will like to thank God Almighty for hearing my prayers and supported me through the relationship period. To God be the glory!!!

ihave a lovesick teacher: Intelligence and Wisdom Bing Song, 2021-09-08 This book centers on rethinking foundational values in the era of frontier technologies by tapping into the wisdom of Chinese philosophical traditions. It tries to answer the following questions: How is the essence underpinning humans, nature, and machines changing in this age of frontier technologies? What is the appropriate ethical framework for regulating human-machine relationships? What human values should be embedded in or learnt by AI? Some interesting points emerged from the discussions. For example, the three dominant schools of Chinese thinking-Confucianism, Daoism and Buddhism-invariably reflect non-anthropocentric perspectives and none of them places humanity in a supreme position in the universe. While many Chinese philosophers are not convinced by the prospect of machine intelligence exceeding that of humans, the strong influence of non-anthropocentrism in the Chinese thinking contributed to much less panic in China than in the West about the existential risks of AI. The thinking is that as human beings have always lived with other forms of existence, living with programs or other forms of "beings," which may become more capable than humans, will not inevitably lead to a dystopia. Second, all three schools emphasize self-restraint, constant introspection, and the pursuit of sage-hood or enlightenment. These views therefore see the potential risks posed by frontier technologies as an opportunity for the humanity to engage in introspection on the lessons learned from our social and political history. It is long overdue that humanity shall rethink its foundational values to take into account a multi-being planetary outlook. This book consists of nine leading Chinese philosophers' reflections on AI's impact on human nature and the human society. This is a groundbreaking work, which has pioneered the in-depth intellectual exploration involving traditional Chinese philosophy and frontier technologies and has inspired multidisciplinary and across area studies on AI, philosophy, and ethical implications.
