History and Mission of the Port Washington Historical Society

The Port Washington Historical Society was established to protect and celebrate the unique history of Port Washington and the surrounding Ozaukee County area. Founded in the mid-20th century, the society emerged from local efforts to document the city's maritime heritage, early settlements, and industrial growth. Its mission centers on collecting, preserving, and interpreting artifacts and stories that reflect the community's evolution from a Native American settlement to a bustling port city on Lake Michigan.

The society's dedication to historical preservation is evident through its stewardship of numerous historical landmarks and its commitment to educating the public about the region's past. By fostering a connection between residents and their heritage, the Port Washington Historical Society plays a crucial role in maintaining a sense of identity and pride within the community.

Founding and Early Development

The origins of the Port Washington Historical Society date back to local historians and citizens who recognized the importance of safeguarding the city's history amidst rapid modernization. Early initiatives included collecting photographs, documents, and oral histories that captured the essence of life in Port Washington during the 19th and early 20th centuries. Over time, the society expanded its scope and resources, becoming a central repository for historical research and preservation activities.

Mission Statement and Goals

At its core, the Port Washington Historical Society aims to:

- Preserve historical artifacts and records related to Port Washington and its environs.
- Educate the public about the city's cultural, economic, and social history.
- Promote historical research and scholarship.
- Encourage community engagement through exhibits, lectures, and events.
- Support preservation efforts of historic sites and structures.

Collections and Archives

The Port Washington Historical Society maintains an extensive collection of artifacts, photographs, documents, and memorabilia that chronicle the development of the city and its people. These archives serve as invaluable resources for researchers, educators, and anyone interested in the historical narrative of the region.

Artifact Collections

The society's artifact collection includes a wide range of objects that illustrate daily life, industry, and maritime activities in Port Washington. Items such as tools, clothing, household goods, and nautical instruments provide tangible connections to the past. The careful cataloging and preservation of these artifacts ensure their availability for future generations.

Photographic and Document Archives

One of the society's most significant assets is its photographic archive, featuring images that document the city's growth, architecture, community events, and notable figures. Alongside photographs, the document archives contain newspapers, letters, maps, and official records that reveal insights into the social and economic history of Port Washington.

Access and Research Services

The Port Washington Historical Society offers public access to its collections through a research library and digital archives. Researchers can explore genealogical resources, historical maps, and curated exhibits that highlight important themes in the city's history. The staff provides assistance to historians and students, facilitating a deeper understanding of the area's heritage.

Museums and Historic Sites Managed

The Port Washington Historical Society is responsible for maintaining several museums and historic landmarks that showcase the city's past. These sites offer immersive experiences that allow visitors to step back in time and appreciate the architecture, culture, and stories that define Port Washington.

Key Museums

port washington historical society: Port Washington Richard D. Smith, 2011 Port Washington is a picturesque community on the shores of Lake Michigan, just a short drive north of Milwaukee. It celebrates its 175th birthday in September 2010. This book is a vivid description of the city's history, from the Native Americans who lived on these shores when the voyageurs first arrived, through the birth of a thriving and industrious community of immigrants who settled here after leaving Germany and Luxembourg. The pages touch on the early years of industry, focusing on the maritime heritage of Port Washington, and give the reader a wonderful photographic tour of what Port Washington was like over 100 years ago. Some of these photographs have never before been published and some of the buildings no longer exist, which makes this book a treasure trove of historic images to be enjoyed by many generations.

port washington historical society: North Point Milwaukee Lighthouse Ken Wardius, Barb Wardius, Friends Nplh, 2011 The North Point Milwaukee Lighthouse, neatly nestled in beautifully landscaped Lake Park on Milwaukee's east side, is a local maritime jewel. Incorporated as part of legendary landscape architect Frederick Law Olmsted's grand design for this scenic urban park, North Point rests far atop a bluff overlooking Lake Michigan, making it one of the highest light stations on the Great Lakes. Three distinctly different lighthouses have been located here, each with its own unique story. Notable keepers include Georgia Stebbins, who came to North Point as a sickly young woman and was transformed by fresh air and hard work into a feisty, dedicated lightkeeper and served with distinction for over 30 years. Abandoned and boarded up for many years, North Point has been resurrected from near ruin. Today, the North Point Lighthouse Friends see to it that this historic sentinel is preserved for future generations.

port washington historical society: Long Island Rail Road: Port Washington Branch David D. Morrison, 2023 The Long Island Rail Road (LIRR) is the oldest railroad in the country still operating under its original name. It is the busiest railroad in North America, with 90 million annual riders on 735 trains covering 11 different branches. The Port Washington Branch carries 14 million riders annually and is the third-busiest branch on the LIRR, behind the Port Jefferson Branch (19 million riders) and the Babylon Branch (18 million riders). Port Washington Branch trains converge with the main line just east of Woodside Station. The branch has been electrified since 1913 and is double-track to a point just east of Great Neck Station. The highest bridge on the railroad is the Manhasset Viaduct, which goes over Manhasset Bay. The branch has serviced the 1939 New York World's Fair and the 1964 New York World's Fair as well as the stadium of the New York Mets baseball team. The Whitestone Branch, which was abandoned in 1932, diverted from the Port Washington Branch at a point a bit east of the current Mets-Willets Point station.
